    AALL Liaison Report

2013 concluded with our program, Using the AALL Principles and Standards for Legal Research Competencies in Law Schools and Law Firms at the Professional Development Institute in December. This program coincided with the launch of AALL’s very impressive online information center dedicated to promoting the Principles and Standards for Legal Research Competency. This easy to use resource is designed to assist in the development of effective and efficient legal research competencies which are guaranteed to improve your bottom line.

The AALL section on recruitment to law librarianship is updating its brochure on careers in law librarianship. The new brochure will be circulated to law schools and other NALP members. In the meantime, anyone interested in a career as a legal information professional may visit Careers on the AALL webpage. This section includes job descriptions, educational requirements and salary surveys.

There was an interesting note about Pecha Kucha in the December 2013 AALL newsletter. Petcha Kucha is a fast-paced presentation style that displays 20 images for 20 seconds each as the foundation for short-form public speaking. I can’t wait to try it. Go to www.pechakucha.org/watch for some fun examples.
